unemployment rate black or african american instl400006

bin has let black americans worse off since the movement

5 facts about depression in african americans, including the most common symptoms and how to get help. black americans view mental health differently than the rest of americans. depression is invisible, and it can be hard to identify. it is a mental health issue that affects those who have a history of trauma or stress, and it can also be caused by a variety of factors, such as genetics, culture, and life experiences. for this reason, the american psychiatric association has developed a framework for understanding and addressing mental health issues among black americans.